Forecast For Southwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Thursday 09 Sep 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Showers ease through the evening, ahead of outbreaks of rain.

This Evening and Tonight:
Scattered, possibly heavy, showers gradually ease into the evening and the first half of the night. Drier for a time then widespread outbreaks of showery rain then arrive from the west through the early hours. Minimum temperature 16 deg C (61 deg F).

Friday:
A cloudy start for all, with widespread showery rain. Cloud breaks into the afternoon to allow for brighter skies, but also scattered, possibly heavy and thundery showers to break out. Maximum temperature 21 deg C (70 deg F).

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Saturday starting cloudy but turning brighter through the day, though light showers remain possible. Largely dry with sunny spells for Sunday and Monday; before heavy showers arrive late Monday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.